DAVID YURS

Civil Engineering

Through Tau Beta Pi, David has served as a tutor for math and physics courses for students in the College of Engineering. Beyond his natural talent in the classroom, David is a strong leader. He regularly schedules time to meet with other students in these design groups, helping them with their work and offering useful suggestions. David has also taken active roles in other student groups, including our student chapter of ITE (Institute of Transportation Engineers) and Engineers Without Borders.
